Legal requirements

for landlords

Landlords in the UK are required to adhere to stringent safety regulations designed to protect tenants from avoidable hazards. Frost staff are given comprehensive training and have detailed knowledge of how to handle these risks, guaranteeing you peace of mind that your legal obligations have been fulfilled. We would like to draw your attention to the following specific pieces of legislation, on which our staff can provide further advice and guidance.

Gas and electrical safety

The Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998 stipulate that all gas appliances must be inspected annually by a Gas Safe registered engineer. A valid Gas Safety Record must be issued each time and updated every twelve months. Non-compliance is a criminal offence with serious penalties. The Electrical Equipment (Safety) Regulations 1994 require that electrical equipment, including wiring, is safe. A Portable Appliance Test (or more detailed full electrical inspection, if necessary) should be carried out regularly and all electrical testing must be conducted by a qualified and registered engineer.

Fire and furnishings

The Furniture and Furnishings (Fire and Safety) Regulations 1988 state that it is a criminal offence to let premises with upholstered furniture that does not comply with the safety regulations. There are certain exemptions to note, but the penalties for non-compliance are tough.

Smoke Alarms and Carbon Monoxide Regulations 2015

From 1st October 2015 all properties are required by law to have a smoke alarm on each floor of the property. Additionally, in any room with a solid fuel appliance there must be a carbon monoxide or joint smoke / CO alarm fitted. If not mains operated, batteries should be checked and replaced regularly.

A fire blanket or small fire extinguisher should be provided in the kitchen.

How to Rent Guide

A How to Rent Guide must be supplied to the tenant prior to commencement of the tenancy. Failure to do so will affect the landlord's ability to terminate the tenancy.

The Housing Health & Safety System (HHSRS) and Houses in Multiple Occupation (HMOs)

Under The Housing Act 2004 there is a mandatory requirement for landlords of properties made up of three or more storeys AND occupied by five or more people to have a licence issued by the local authority as these are viewed as Houses of Multiple Occupation (HMO). Certain local authorities also class smaller low occupancy properties as HMO's and you should familiarise yourself with your local authority's policy. The HHSRS is the risk assessment system by which residential properties are assessed by local authorities. Certain HMOs and other properties might be assessed under HHSRS at some point.

Tenancy Deposit Scheme

With effect from 6th April 2007 it became law, under the Housing Act 2004, that all tenancy deposits have to be protected. Tenancy deposit protection schemes ensure that if the landlord and tenant dispute the deposit repayment amount at the end of tenancy then it will be resolved by the dispute resolution service. There are two types of scheme and we will be happy to advise you on the correct type for you. Find out more at www.direct.gov.uk/en/TenancyDeposit

Energy Performance Certificate (EPC)

If you're letting a property, the law requires you to provide an Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) to prospective tenants. An EPC is a legal requirement for any new tenancies and details the energy performance of a property. It is carried out by an accredited Domestic Energy Assessor to ensure it meets all legal requirements and is valid for 10 years. Your local Frost Partnership branch is able to advise you on the cost of an EPC and will be happy to arrange it for you.

Right to Rent

As part of government reforms to the immigration system, from 1 February 2016, all private landlords in England will have to make right to rent checks. Landlords will need to see documents proving that the tenant has the right to be in the UK. Acceptable documents include UK or EEA passport, Home Office immigration status document or certificate of naturalisation as a British citizen. Landlords who don't make the checks could be fined up to £3,000.

“From the moment we first stepped into The Frost Partnership, we have received courteous, friendly, prompt and efficient help and service. We could not have asked for more from an estate agent whether when letting the flat or selling it for us. ...we have no hesitation in recommending you to everyone looking for a letting or selling agent.”

Mr and Mrs Coles Landlords

Presenting your property for letting

In order to maximise the letting potential of your property, quality of presentation and attention to detail are crucially important. The more attractive and complete the presentation, the easier it becomes to find a high calibre tenant and achieve a good rental return. Key points to consider include:

- Décor and fittings
Décor and fittings should be in good order. Most tenants' preference is for plain, natural colours for decoration and carpets.
- Kitchens
Kitchens should be fully fitted with up-to-date appliances including an oven, hob, washing machine, a good capacity refrigerator/freezer and dishwasher.
- Bathrooms
Showers are a prerequisite and there is a general preference for neutral coloured suites and tiled walls.
- Exterior
To create a good impression, the exterior of the property must be in good, fresh decorative condition. Garages should be cleared ready for use, and gardens presented in attractive seasonal condition.
- Appliances
All appliances and machinery must be in good working order, and serviced as appropriate.
- Instruction manuals
Manufacturers' operating and instruction manuals for all appliances and electrical equipment should be left in the property. It is important that all electrical equipment and the central heating boiler are serviced and in good working order.
- Utilities
Ensure that all available utilities are connected to the property including telephone line, electricity, gas and water. Where provided, check that LPG gas containers and oil tanks are full at the start of the tenancy and that the septic tank is empty.
- Keys
A minimum of three complete sets of keys must be provided.

Tax implications

For owners resident in the UK, landlords are obliged to inform the Inland Revenue of the tenancy. If you have a property in the UK but your usual home is outside the UK, you will need to register with the Non-resident Landlord Scheme.

For more details, contact the Inland Revenue or see www.hmrc.gov.uk/international/nr-landlords.htm
